A platform had been erected on the lawn and dancing was to have had a place on the program, but the air was so damp the musicians felt it unwise to attempt outdoor work. But with sociability, music and cames the time was happily passed and the host and hostess received hearty congratulations on the completion of 25 years of prosperous and happy married life. They also received a large list of presents among which may be mentioned s dining room set from Unitah lodge, Daughters of Rebekah, a mahogany table from neighbors and a lounging chair from the shopmates of Mr. Harrington, who is employed as a carpenter at the Windsor Print works. tury and a Quarter Old.

This morning while a number of street railroad employes were digging in the gravel bed near Hoosac Valley park and next to the Morey road, Dexter Mason discovered a box containing old coins The box was decayed and the coins were wrapped in a piece of cloth which was decayed also. There were 15 coins in the box and all of them were copper, Only one of them was legible and it was an Enlish penny of the reign of George II. This sovereign died in 1769, There is much speculation as to how these coins became buried six feet in a gravel bed that evidently has not been disturbed for a cencoins. The experts from Boston worked on the Adams National bank safe Thursday afternoon and through the night, getting it open at 5 o'clock this morning. The outer door had to be torn all to pieces and it was a big job. The operation roused much curiosity, and crowds stood at the bank window all the evening to see the work go on. #### MASSACHUSETT'S OPINION AS TO O'NEIL'S CONVICTION.

Below is to be found a consensus of opinion regarding the conviction of John O'Neil gathered from many comments by newspapers all over the state. There seem to be but one . opinion,-that right and justice has provailed and society is better off for the verdict rendered. Some of the editorial comments selected are: The action of the jury in Greenfield in

The action of the jury in Creement in finding John O'Nell guilty of the crime of murdering Mrs. McCloud is one in which those who have followed the course of the evidence can hardly fail to concur. To determine the weight of testimony in a case where there is nothing but circumstantial evidence is always a difficult material to the recognition that what may appear case where there is nothing out direamination, levidence is always a difficult matter, for the reason that what may appear proof to one mind may not be regarded with my great degree of favor by another. It is well in the state of Massachusetts that moffenses of this kind the law should promotly and effectually assert itself in this manner. We know that in the South, and sometimes in the West, there is a tende acy to resort to illegal methods of punishment when crimes of this character are committed, and if there was a miscarrage of justice in Massachusetts, if it were found that those who committed the most horrible of crimes were apt to escape punishment unless evidence of an overwhelming character was presented, it is not impossible that even here the community, feeling the need of self-protection which the laws did not afford, would take the matter in their own hands and secure prompt instice, even if, at times, their action was accompanied by great cruelty and even wrong.—Boston Herald.

The conviction of John O'Nell of the cruelty and even wrong.—Boston Herald.

The conviction of John O'Neil of the erfine of murder in the first degree, in the trial which came to an end at Greenfield yesterday, is a triumph of justice which public sentiment will applicad. There can be no doubt of the man's guilt, and the verdict of the jury not only satisfies public opinion, but realizes the general expectation. The murder of Mrs. Mc-Cloud was one of those crimes which sometimes startle a quiet rural New England community out of its peaceful security by their horror and their seeming lack of intelligent purpose. While they cannot be said to indicate insanity in the perpetrators, but a loss of mental balance cannot be said to indicate insamily in the perp trators, but a loss of mental balance which sinks the criminal below the level of a ferocious beast. O'Neil's crime was one of peculiar strooity, abominable in every way, and the world will be well rid of an abnormal monster when the law sends him out of it.—Boston Post.

For our own part, we confess to a strong which has been returned in the case of John O'Neil for the ravishment and mur-John O'Neil for the ravishment and mur-der of Mrs. McCloud. The public at large, we are convinced, will share this feeling in (qual degree. Crimes so atroctous as the one for which O'Neil must pay the forcit of his life excite such abhorence and horror that the public can reconcile the proper treatment of the perpetrator only with that procedure which shall rid only with that procedure which shall rid the world, by legal measures, of one who has proved himself a veritable monster.
As for the jury, the promptitude with which it returned a verdict of guilty of nursier in the first degree may be accepted as tolerably fair evidence that by the ame counsel had concluded their arguments, the fate of the accused was scaled. The verdict is to be halled as a triumph of justice; and outside of a number of namby-pambyists who are so prone in giving way to mawkish sympathy for a condemned murderer to forget the victim and ignore the atrocities committed, its formal execution will everywhere be applaceded.—Salem News.

The trial of John O'Neil, Jr., at Green-

The trial of John O'Neil, Jr., at Green-field for the horrible murder of Mrs. Hat-tie I. McCloud of Shelburne Falls, which has just closeed, has been one of the most intensely interesting ever held in West-ern Massachusetts. In fact there have be a few trids in the state which have attricted so wate attention. He was a man who was arrested on suspicion and against whom there had previously been no record of crime. Every particle of evidence against him was circumstantial, any one fact being of itself of little import, but taken together, they made a network which was perfect. The verdict speedily reached by the jury, was unquestionably the only one which could have been rendered, O'Neil, either alone or in company of mother, committed one of the most atrocious crimes in the history of the state.—Springfield Union.

The verdict in the O'Neil case is anbeen few trials in the state which have at state.—Springfield Union.

The verdict in the O'Neil case is approved by about everyone who has closely followed the testimony. A few lawyers declare that the evidence did not warrant the verdict of guilty of murder in the first degree and probably, had the jury been made up of 12 lawyers a disagreement would have been reported. The charga to the jury by Chief Justice Mason was absolutely impartial and plainly showed the jurors their duty, and they had the courage to perform it, painful as it must have been.—Fitchburg Seutinel.

The trial of O'Neil has resulted as most

The trial of O'Neil has resulted as most people who made themselves familiar with the evidence expected it would and meets the public approbation. It is far from a pleasant thing to have any man convicted of murder and there is pity for the convicted man and sympathy for his family, which appears to be composed of very worthy people. There will be some delay in the execution of O'Neil on account of the exceptions to be filled, which will carry the case to the supreme court, but there can be no reasonable doubt but that he will be hung. It may be a year before the sentence is carried into effect.—Northampton Gazette. The trial of O'Neil has resulted as most has been convinced that O'Neil was guilty since Mr. Hammond opened the case for the government a week ago Monday.

That is human nature. But it is not too mat it and to the case for the converted to the case for the government. much to ask of the press that it decline in future murder trials to prejudge the case or treat the attorneys for the prisoner with doubtful courtesy.—Springfield

John O'Neil has been found guilty of the John O'Neil has been found guity of the nurder of Mrs. Hattie McCloud and must pay the penalty the state prescribes for capital crines. No one who has carefully followed the case as presented by the government and by the defense, will be surprised at the verdict. The government case has not shown to a detail the way an excellent woman has been putally murexcellent woman has been brutally mur-dered, but it has made a chain of circumdered, but it has made a chain of circumstances point with an awini certainness to John O'Neil. All through New England the jury's verdict will be supported as just and true. The security of rural life will be aided by it. The punishment that is to follow will be only in measure with the crime that has stirred this valley with the crime that has stirred this valley. as it has not been aroused in such manner for a generation.—Holyoke Transcript.

HOW NORTH ABAMS' POPULATION IS COMPOSED.

The classified statistics of Massachusetts are coming piece-meal from the office of Statistician Horace G. Waldin in Boston. They are the results of the census takers of 1895. The last volume issued deals with "population and social statistics," and has a tabulated statement of the place of birth of the inhabitants of each own and city in the state.

This city has a total population of 19,135 of which 13,666 are native born. Of this native population 6,565 are males and 7,101 re females. Of the native born 8,519 were born in Massachusetts of whom 5,827 were born in North Adams,—only about one-quarter of all in the city. New York state has con tributed 2,700, Vermont 1,447, Connecticut 220, Pennsylvania 129, Rnode Island 118, New Hampshire 140. Maine 110. S Polocks, 7 Swiss, 3 Portugese, 3 Asiatics, 7 born at sea. Pittsfield has 2.247 more native-born population than North Adams has.

The only further item of real interest we note in this latest volume of statistics is the fact that there are 154 mothers-inlaw in the city, and but 45 fathers-inlaw. There is no foot note calling attention to this unhappy fact, nor stating what became of the 109 of fathers-in-law who probably once belonged to the overbalance of mothers-in-law. The marines and sailors from the Amer ican men-of-war have no reason to complain if they go ashore at Honolulu, get drunk and are thrown into prison. The must remember that Hawaii is not yet a part of the United States.

Mr. Parkhurst is entitled to no little praise for his able argument. He was a sick man when he commenced the plea for the life of O'Nell—sick in body and sick at heart. And yet he made a plea which must have influenced the jury strongly but for the weakness of the evidence of the defense, and the able argument of the attorney general which followed it. He surprised even those who knew him by his able and eloquent defense of the prisoner at the bar.—Springfield Union.

The press, generally, in and out of the state, is improving the opportunity to impress the vivid temperance lessons the awful affair teaches, but to what purpose? The "gangs" of young men, and of boys hardly in their teens, who are proving apt pupils in just such schools of vice as that which has developed the "Shelburne Falls gang," will go right along in their diligent pursuit of the infamous education of all the baser passions gained in the diligent pursuit of the infamous education of all the baser passions gained in the saloons and barrooms and in the "dens" and "huts" where "pints" and "bottles" and perpetual "drinks" of bestializing, brain and soulsturefying "beer" and maddening whiskey are the sole attractions. Every community has its "Shelburne Falls gang." The country village and the small city rival the great city centers in the vileness of their moral plague posts. It would not have been amiss if the president gives a complete the original power of the same and all weaker people have been subjected to the dangers that culminated in Mrs. McCloud's most fearful murder. Apparently the same kind of thing is to go on indefinitely. Only yesterday saw a couple of hangers—on of the same community sentenced for drunkenness. And what is going on at Shelburne Falls is goon go at the understanding on the account of the constant when the jury returns its verdict. The average man is proved guilty, yes, all through his trial and up to the instant when the jury returns its verdict. The average man is proport to bring in a verdict of guilty against a person accused of either orime or misdemeanor. ## "'' 'WAY DOWN UPON THE FARM."

Lovers of Real Rusticity Flocking to Their Favorite Vacation Haunts.

One hears very little nowadays about "abandoned farms." The farms of New England just at present are anything but deserted, for the great and growing colony of "summer boarder:" is now swarming all over the face of smiling nature, from Hampton beach to the Green mountains and from Mt. Wachuset to the Aroostool river, fairly besieging the hospitable, good-natured farmer and reveling in the outdoor joys that only New England can provide in perfection.

It is by no means only at the better known and "popular" resorts that the would-be vacationist can have an allaround good time. The former places are all right for the wealthy and more fastidious, but even people of means and social prominence often prefer to take their summer siesta in the less pretentions precincts of a farm or country boarding house. There are hundreds of each of these cattered throughout the extensive area covered by the multitudinous branches of the Boston & Maine railroad, where a delightful rest, accompanied by good board and unconventional surroundings may readily be secured. Make up your mind how far away from the city you would like to go, how much you care to pay for transportation, and then get a copy of the Boston & Maine Excursion book for 189 and select your location. This handy brochure contains a complete list of the different pieces suited to vacation purposes, together with the various boarding bouses and their prices. It will be mailed to any address free on application to the General Passenger Department, Boston & Meine rallroad, Boston.

This excursion will start from Green field, Mass., at 6.25 a. m., passing North Adams at 7.20 a. m., arriving at Saratoga 10.25 a. m., and on return will leave Sara toga at 5.00 p. m. Excursion rate from North Adams only $1.25.

There was a great deal of du pain across the loins when standing on my feet and a sensation of languor completely mastered me. I read several accounts of Doan's Kidney Pills effecting maryelous cures. Some of them seemed inst like my case and Issked my husband to go to Burlingame & Darbys's for a box. I only took them for a week, yet the dis-571 1 tressing backache disappeared and all the stiffness and lameness vanished. My Dear Jemima:-

You are quite right in saying that 'here seem to be but a few ways to serve apples, but perhaps I may be able to belo you out a bit and not only have a tempting dish as a result but a healthful and easily digested one. In cheering the fruit get the largest and most perfect apples possible. Pippins are always desirable as well as Baidwins for any dish, and sometimes the russet varieties, but the latter do not cook as satisfactorily as the oth-

Only this morning I made some APPLE FRITTERS.

For this you procure some good pippins and peel, core and slice them. Then lay the slices to scak in some ice water, in hich a little nutmeg and sugar havbeen placed, for some hours.

When ready to prepare the fritters make a batter of four eggs, a tablespoonful of resewater and a tablespronful of milk and mix with just enough flour it is properly worked. Ereak off little to thicken. Having heated some butter preces; prick them with a fork, and bake in a fryingpan, den each slice of apple in the batter and fry to a golden brown color. Serve with powdered sugar and greated nutmeg, upon an open glass dish covered with a dainty dolly. This is a delicious dish. Another and a very pret ty one we call

FROSTED APPLES.

Choose six large and perfect apples core them and stew until the skins can be removed easily. Each apple when ter, covered with powdered sugar and the hollow left by the removal of the core filled with chopped dates. Place the ap pies in a slow oven and when the sugar sparkles they may be considered ready to serve, after being cooled a little.

Last week little Max Williams had a party and among the dishes was one of rice, sugar, milk and water, as many peeled and cored apples as may be required and a few cloves. Boll the rice in sufficient milk and water to keep it well covered until nearly finished, and may be used instead of corn starch, but the latter makes a smoother and more delicate sauce. This sauce may be addthen strain it. In the hollow of the apples put some sugar and stick a clove or two into each one. Surround each ed to chopped chicken or lobster for a small pudding cloth. Then place them with fish. all in a vessel and boll from three-quarters of an hour to an hour, according to the size of the fruit. Apples thus pre-pared may be served by themselves of surrounded by a good custard. The

BAKED APPLE PUDDING is made as follows: Pare, core and slice apples thin. Butter a pudding dish and ful it with alternate layers of apples and sugar, well-spiced. When the dish is full, add bits of butter and a little water; cover with a good pie crust and bake in a rather quick oven until the apples are done. A nice way to serve cold boiled outmucal is to fry it and serve in smc":

STUFFED BANANAS. Cut the bananas on one side only, take out the pulp and use for some other dish.

Then fill the hollow skins with stewed apples, highly spiced, through which is sprinkled chopped cherries. This is eaten from the banana skin with a fork. and when served ice cold makes a deliclous dish for plazza luncheons and the like. Orange skins may be used in the same way, but are more likely to impart

CHEESE FINGERS. Take a cupful of flour, one tablespoon ful of hutter, one-quarter of a teaspoonful of salt, a dash of cayenne, one-half a teaspoonful of baking powder and mix

At the present season judgment and care should be exercised that not too much heat-producing food is used. Nature in all seasons indicates the line of food most desirable in her supply of seasonable material. During the hot summer, fruits, berries and vegetables are most abundant. Science claims that orly 65 per cent of our food should be heat making, hence the tendency, especially at this time, to select a very large proportion of our food from such heat-making material as fats, rice, cornstarch, white flour products, potatoes and sweets, must increase the discomfort caused by the weather, in addition to being inferior in health-sustaning properties.

The berries are coming right along now, and in my next letter I shall tell you how to prepare them in some entirely new ways.
You say you have trouble in cleaning your frying pans. Have a whisk broom and clean with the broom, and you will be surprised at the result. Do not wait too long after using before cleaning. Yours culinarily, COMFORT JONES,

A SUMMER SALAD. on political economy, once said: Human beings owe to each other help to distinguish the better from the worse tired out and overheated.

But we teach a better way. We want to help you to keep cool by calling your atention to a food already cooked which in and of itself thoroughly nourishes without overheating the hody which can be combined with juicy fruits and berries, making ideal summer diches both wholesome and marvelously dellclous and at wonderful saving of time on the 5.10 train and took the night boat at Troy for New York. The facts in the case were made known by the New York papers Thursday, when they contained accounts of the suicide of the young man at his father's home. His name was Edward Mitchell and he was 23 years old. He was a member of the class of '98. Columbia Medical college, was a talented and popular young man and had bright prospects. He appeared to be in usual health and spirits up to the time of the suicide, which he committed by day looking up cases of sheep killing by dogs. He found that while not many had been killed, three flocks had been attacked, those of Fred Northup and Frank Williams of Sweet's Corners and Stephen Bacon of the Hopper. Each man had lost one sheep and their flocks had been badly worried. The dogs that did the damage belong in this village, and one of them at least will be ordered killed. The other is a young dog, and the | county. number of sheep killed in town this summer. C. H. Barber and Mr. Dann of James Goodrich farm on Northwest hill, have each lost a number, and a few have been killed in other parts of the town.

A Very Sad Case, her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Michael Mc-

Summer luxuries

Don't think of going through this summer without certain needed articles, among which are a straw hat, a palm leaf fan, and a piece of rattan furniture. Have as many pieces of rattan as your house and purse will permit; one is an essential, two will be a luxury. The cost is small; you can reach the borderland o

There is no summer furniture like rattan; it is warmly associated with the period of youth; yet, like the man who blew his hand to warm it and his soup to cool it, rattan cools and warms alike; but its cooling mission brings it warmest praise.

Rattan furniture is light, but almost indestructible by ordinary wear; it is the cleanest of all furniture; it is the coolest; it is the most inexpensive, and, unlike any other, it harmonizes with all colors and styles of furnishings.

HISTORICAL OUTING

An Ovation to Susan B. Anthony in Her Native Town.

NOTED GATHERING AT ADAMS.

Miss Anthony Was the Center of the Group and the Subject of Appreciative Eulogies. Famous Women Made Speeches. Woman's Suffrage Upheld.

The Berkshire Historical and Scientific society held its annual outing at Forest park, Adams, Thursday. The first part of the program was dinner for the invited guests in the large ravilion which was lecorated for the occasion. The platform was covered around with pine boughs, the roof was profusely hung with Japanese lanterns and the American flag was draped conspicuously. Dinner was had a little after 12 o'clock. Miss Susan B Anthony, the honored guest, occupied the position at the head of the table. Rev. Anna B. Shaw of Philadelphia asked the blessing. About 50 had dinner.

While dinner was being eaten friends of the society were arriving in numbers and gathered to the extent of about 500 persons. The executive committee and Dr-D. E. Thayer of Adams had provided good accommodations for the visitors. Tallyhos and hacks were waiting when all the trains arrived. The visitors were carried to the park without the least inconvenience. The accommodations at the pavilion were excellent. The nature of capacity was abundant and a number of Adams men kept themselves busy in seeing that all were supplied with positions.

The dinner over, the guests went on the platform. When Miss Susan B. Anthony came forward she was applauded. Upon the platform were Miss Susan B, Anthony; Mrs. Ida Harper, biographer of Miss Susan B. Anthony; Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, New York; Miss Alice Stone Blackwell, Roston: Mrs. May Wright Sewall, Indianapolis; Mrs. Rachel Foster Avery, Philadelphia; Rev. Anna H. Shaw, Philadelphia: Mrs. Clara B. Colby, Washington, D. C. Rev. A. B. Whipple, Pittsfield, vice president of the society, sat with Miss Anthony on the platform and presided in the absence of Dr. John Bascom.

in the book cases at our door some of the Mr. Whipple explained the reason Preslatest and most popular novels in paper ident Taylor was not present. He went covers at only 10c each, sold elsewhere at into the history of Adams a little and gave the information that the town was named from Samuel Adams or John Adams. He punned on the double town, with double name and said as to the origin of name there was the double choice.

Rev. Dr. Louis Zahner of St. Mark's made a short address of welcome. He considered the town of Adams very fortunumerous useful articles displayed, at 1c, nate in having the meeting. How appropriate it is that these people should gather here to review history and recall the beginnings of the best things we have today. The outcome of our social life is the outbuilding of the fruit of the most healthy thrifty plant that was rooted in those old times and people,

Miss Susan B. Anthony was introduced and said it was a great many years since she faced an audience in Adams. The last meeting was in the Baptist 80 years of age, came down to see her and went into that church. She explained that she was not an Anthony alone, for the names the Laflins, Reeds and Richardsons are also to be taken into account. So you see I drag all around the four quarters of the globe in this territory. Miss Anthony paid a tribute to the prominent ladies on the platform, to whom she gave the name of "body guard" to herself. They are all holding leading positions in the world, working for the establishment of woman's rights, or equal rights with man. She would introduce them all, so that they could tell of the part they are taking in this great rebellion which Abigal Adams began before many

The astonishment caused to some Euglish people by Miss Anthony's suggestion that a fine Italian castle would make a good orphanage was presented and applauded. Miss Avery referred ouite humorously to Miss Anthony's mistakes in giving titled ladies their proper titles, and her conclusion to call every woman "Miss" or "Mrs." and be Ameri-Mrs. Harriet Taylor Upton referred little to her family history and didn't know whether Mark E. Couch of North Adams was a relative. She said she heard he was a fighting Couch and Marcus Couch at that. There never was a family of Couches that had not a Marcus and one but had a fighter. Mrs. Upton spoke of western Ohio and said it was more New England than New England itself. The speaker considered the marriage relation, stating that the woman's rights advocates want marriage as a true partnership. Social peculiarities and family incidents occupied most of the speaker's time. Rawlin H. Cook moved that the owners of the hall be thanked for their kindness The vote was unanimous.

Daniel Reed Anthony, editor of the Leavenworth, (Kan.) Times, brother of Miss Anthony, was the next speaker. His remarks about early industries in the valey proved the vast difference between present and half a century ago. He doubted if the progress was appreciated. He was always proud of the Anthony amily and loves Adams.

Miss Alice Stone Blackwell, editor of the Woman's Journal, Boston, and recording secretary of the society Miss Anthony has the honer to represent, was introduced and said she would take it that her audience was in favor of woman's suffrage. It is wrong and unjust to hold from vomen their political rights. All who think so should take some part in removing it. All could not devote a life as Miss Anthony has, but all can do a share, according to their time and opportunity.

Miss Anthony said she had now been at come five months, the longest time she had been at home in 40 years.

Mrs. Ida H. Harper, biographer of Miss Anthony, said she would not say her task of biographer was an unpleasant one. She presumed she now knows more about Miss Anthony than any other, Mrs. Harper said that the first five chapter of Miss Anthony's biography would be devoted to Adams and vicinity. The locality would not be so much famed for its beauty as for its being the home of the famous woman.

Mrs. May Wright Sewall of Indianapolis spoke of the intention of Mr. Hubbard editor of the Philistine, to include Miss Anthony in his "Lives of Great Women." To do so he will probably visit the territory and see the springs that fed her childhood. In her are found the gravity of the mountain, the impetuosity of the brook, yearning to break the old, narrow bounds. We who love her look upon these mustering influences in this locality and consider them as an influence on our eneral, as in the divine fitness of things Turning to why all were here she exwere present because they were lineal dechurch and her old grandfather In Miss Anthony a great reformer has been born and through her the breath of so much in our ancestry should we have pride, we are not responsible for our ancestry, but we are in a measure responsible for our descendants. It is by seeing ourselves as others see us, as the Divine one sees us, that we gather up the courage of our destiny and the courage for our work, something like what our dear general has

Mrs. Clara B. Colby, editor of the Woman's Tribune, Washington, throught the town of Adams and the Historical society would have a new significance after this meeting. Rev. Anna H. Shaw was introduced en out of constitutions. In conclusion Miss glowingly by Miss Anthony. She was the Anthony thanked the society for its invione that has no ancestry. She feels that | tation to be present and bring her friends there is a spiritual ancestry that is higher and bodyguard, who will work after her. than this other ancestry of which some of Miss Anthony announced the family reus are ashamed. She thought there was no chance of Miss Anthony's head being old homestead and invited everybody. turned as some one remarked by the culo- She declared she would do her best to be gies, for the prophets of God are always at their service for the day. Dinner took stoned. I love Miss Anthony not because she is a reform or but because I have seen her soul. Referring to the argument union. against woman suffrage, that the result hoped for would unsex woman she declared that such arguments are false. There is evidence in Miss Anthony's character that love of rights does not de stroy the sympathies. It is all nonsense the theory that God made men all head and women all heart. There are many heady women and lots of hearty men. There is no human being I have ever known who has shown more sympathy for the difficulties of life than Miss Anthony and I believe that when women have ideals such as hers there will be the highest motherhood. The speaker named a tree in the Yosomite valley for Miss Anthony not as a woman, but a monument to an ideal. It is not a name we revere, not a person, but a great ideal, When the best thing is said of Miss Anthony it will be "she was true, she was noble, she was a woman." Mrs. Shaw' address was very eloquent.

President Taylor, of the society whose home is in Great Barrington, and who was late, was called up by the president pro tem. He tendered his thanks to the society for the honor of being elected to office. He is in favor of woman's suffrage and he told stories of Berkshire in the Miss Susan B. Anthony was introduced by the chairman and said one part of her work was the gathering up of threads of history of the women engaged in this re-formative work. They are gathered in three large volumes and are the records of the efforts of the women of this country to gain liberty. She will present three of these volumes to the Berkshire Historical and Scientific society to he placed in its library so that all may read them, The chairman accepted the gift in a strong speech. Miss Anthony resumed and told a little incident "that makes everything seem so splendid to me." The incident was a visit at six years of age to grandma's which showed the home life of the period and childish peculiarities. She contrasted the imagination of the child she was then, the memory she had of things and the actual conditions showing the idealizing quality of the child mind. Her pictures of the old home were highly painted and made their subject very vivid to her hearers. Her reference to her beautiful memories was beautiful in itself. The women of Adams have supported Adams. they have done their full quota of works. The women of the world have done their full quots of the world's work. They have shared in the labor, but not the proceeds and what we want is law that will nake the woman equal sharer in the results of the co-work. After this reference to her ideals she reverted again to home and ancestry and then to the social condition of women of half a contury ago and the woman of today, showing the opening of opportunity. Miss Anthony paid much attention to the work of women in the newspaper world. What I am working for is that when Sally Ann knows more, Sally Ann should be plained, as Miss Anthony did, that all overseer. There isn't a woman under the American flag who does not want justice, scendants of the "general," Miss Anthony, They want the equal work and equal wages. If you want to do anything-token of the service I have been permitted to do, liberty has formed and famed the spark the way to give that token is to put on that began in Abigal Adams to burning your armor and do what you can to secure flame in modern women's bosoms. Not | equality for women and their equal share in government. You do not need to be a good orator. In your own sphere you have the opportunity to become a real evangel in this cause. The progress of equality for women in several states in the union was set forth by Miss Anthony and al.o the gain in the world of work, in which women are almost on an equality. Politically all we want is to have the men union that will take place today at the place today about noon and after that came the informal exercises of the re-Thursday's exercises closed with the

COMMUNICATION.

EDITOR TRANSCRIPT: Pardon me for encroaching upon your columns with a communication, but I must thank you for your timely and able editorial in last night's issue. Your remarks in regard to the exhibition of the motly crowd that congregates at Shelburne Fells depot, I know to be too true, for my business has called me to pass through that town many, many times in the last four or five years; and you did not overdraw the picture. Think of a town that would allow boys to congregate in a but night after night for the purpose of playing cards and smoking-this coupled together with much worse vices, as was sworn to in the trial of John O'Neil. Is it to be wondered at that such a orime should be committed. I thank you again for alluding to the fact that parents are responsible to a large degree for the conduct of their children. Even in our own community we see too much of this lawlessness, and if it were not for our police I know not whither we would drift to. The Springhe'd Republican has recently had a seri s or articles on this very subject. Their own city fathers are alarmed at the depravity of tneir youths. A recent and timely editorial in your paper spoke of the way young lads should conduct themselves on the street. The article I refer to was so meritorious that it was read in several rooms in our public schools by the teachers.

As you say, the experience of Shelburne Falls, may soon fall to the lot of some other village in this section of the state if more vigorous step are not taken to check this youthful depravity and I for one hope to see more such editorials as you printed yesterday, appear in your excellent paper. No one would deprive our boys of all manly and healthy sports and thus have been encouraged in our city, but such sights as are common on our streets and in most of the streets in our mountain villages and towns must have a halt or more shocking crimes will sooner or later come to the surface. Yours truly,

Was Reported Properly. EDITOR TRANSCRIPT-I for one wish to thank you for the very able way in which you have presented the O'Neil case that has been on trial at Greenfield for the last ten day. The objectional part o the evidence was worded so that the most fastedious could not object. Usually this portion of evidence is first put in large type at the head of the article, and then made as disgusting as possible Your able and very accurate account reflects much credit on you. The history told in the way your paper put it could be read in any home in our community without bringing a blush of shame to one's cheek. This may in a measure account for the very large sale I am told your paper had in all adjoining towns as well as your own city which proves conclusively that such a trial can be reported and not made disgusting. Thanks for the modest and truthful style you have Yours truly, adopted, I remain, A READER.
